hands of his countrymen. Mr. Gibson said:

I was always astonished at the confidence with which many asserted that the Union was irrevocably gone—that America was rent in twein; and I was surprised at those who prejudged the question as the power of the Government of the United States to resist the great rebellion. I cannot see myself that the Southern Confederacy, who undertook by force of any step of asynder the American Equiphicaarns to cut asunder the American Republic—who undertook by force of arms to coerce the Government of the United States—should be established, and have slavery as its fundamental basis. [Cheers | They wish to establish a new edifice, of which slavery is to be the chief corner-stone. [Hear, hear.] I could not, as I have stated before, feel much sympathy for such a cause. [Hear, hear.] I feel naturally strong sympathy for nations struggling for independence—trying by sometimes even violent means to overthrow despotism and tyranny; but the case here is entirely different. It was the case of a number of partners in a common arn s to cut asunder the American Republi but the case here is entirely different. It was the case of a number of partners in a common firm who separated from the rest in a violent manner and without cause, and for the purpose of establishing principles which ought never have been promulgated. The struggle between the South and the North is really a struggle between slavery and freedom. [Cheers.] And I cannot see myself that this Confederacy has at present nown signs of being able to establish upon ermanent foundations the empire which it has hadowed forth to the world. What is the resent situation? The Border States, which rmed at first a part of the territory claimed y the Confederacy, are all gone. All the de-table territory in which it was a question hether there was an inclination to the South rothe North is under the control of the nited States Government. In point of fact, ow, this great conflict seems to be sustained uninly by three States on the eastern shore, mainly by three States on the eastern shore, viz.: North and South Carolina and a part of Virginia. | A voice: "They will be gone soon." | 1 was told by a person who long resided in the United States, at the very commencement of this war, "Don't venture upon prediction [hear, hear]—don' be a prophet in this matter. Neither you nor I can tell the result of this great conflict." And, therefore, though I am merely reciting what I believe to be the facts, and what I have gleaned from the information that has reached us, still I am not venturing, even now, to make a prediction; and I am here even now, to make a prediction; and I am here to say that her Majesty's government are dis-posed now, as they have ever been, to preserve strict and impartial neutrality. [Cheers.] pill-feelings between England and the United tates. [Hear, hear.] There are those in the nited States also who would stir up, no doubt, l-feelings toward England. There are always

I am quite sure that the Government of England have no other desire but to act toward the Government of the United States in, to use the words of Washington, "a spirit of exalted justice." Their desire is to cultivate with the United States friendly feelings and relations of of amity, and I hope and trust and believe that the Government of the United States is actuated by the same just and righteous feelings. [Hear, hear.] That there may be questions to discuss between two countries it under tions to discuss between two countries situated as we have been is very possible; but I believe that these questions will be approached in a calm and dignified spirit, and will be settled not y passion but by reason. [Hear, hear] It is not to be wondered at that much irrita-on has existed in the United States at the epredations that have been committed by the course of the civil war. But, on our side it must be remembered that the Government has used all the means in its power to prevent these evasions of the law, and to discover the men who in this country are so unpatriotic as, under these circumstances, to endeavor to escape from and evade the law. It is the purpose of the foreign enlistment act to prevent this; be-cause it is not to be expected that patriotic Eng-lishmen are to endeavor or be willing to break the spirit of the law, and feel satisfied if they have contrived to keep within its letter and its say that offence was as great as if the ship had

FUNERAL OF M. PROUDHON-TROOPS UNDER EMS.—The Paris correspondent of the London Daily News, writing Jan. 27th, says: M. Proudhon's funeral to-day was attended w some exciting incidents, the true character f which is doubtful at the moment at which I write. He died at Passy, a suburb of Paris. A considerable crowd assembled at Passy to fol-low the corpse to the grave. Until half an hour before the time fixed for the funeral to set out, only about half a dozen policemen in uniform (I am told there were many more in plain clothes) showed themselves about the door. But suddenly the sound of military music was left the people who filled the causeway. asserted, but I cannot help doubting the fact, that the advance-guard went through the form of loading their muskets.

As the head of the regiment approached M.

man in the house, he ought to stop the music He is said to have answered, that, as there was no mourning drapery at the door, he could not know that there was a corpse in the house. The fact is, that, by the express directions of the deceased, the usual display of black cloth was dispensed with. He desired to be buried as a poor man, and in the fosse commune (the on ditch." where there is no separation

"common ditch," where there is no separation of graves), and his wishes were religiously complied with. It is hard to believe that the Colonel of the regiment, who saw the unusual crowd in the quiet village of Passy, did not know this. However, he complied with the request to stop the music, and, it is said, saluted the coffin with his sword as he passed by.

Five minutes later a regiment of the Grenadier Guards followed in the wake of the lineregiment, and the scene above described was repeated. Some people cried "bravo" when the Colonel stopped the music; but others said, "no bravo"—they suspected that the military demonstration was purposely made. It is hard to think the contrary. However, the evening papers say that it was an accidental mintary

Parliament was formally opened on Tuesday, February 7th, by a royal commission. The speech from the throne consisted of the usual generalities. The only portion important to American readers is as follows:

the policy of the Government in relation to American affairs. Earl Russell, in reply, spoke at some length on the subject, and severely criticised the course adopted by the Confederate agents, in attempting to embroil England in a war with the United States by intrigues and plots in Canada and England. He stated that the English Government was desirous of preserving an honest neutrality, but added:

"It was certainly unreasonable in the Government and Congress of the United States to suppose that England was bound to prevent any aid being sent from this country to the Confederates. To prevent this was impossible, though the government had used every effort to prevent ships being built and sold here that were afterward employed as ships of war, to the great damage of American commerce. The appearance of such ships coming from England had, not unnaturally, greatly irritated the American people. So with regard to the convention between Canada and the Federation. Lerd Derby seemed to think that America acted quite gratuituously, and without reason.

"But the Confederates had actually prepared hostile attacks on the Americans on Canadian territory, and it could not be expected that the Americans should remain exposed to war on the lakes without any means of defence. That the people of the North should complain also of Her Majasty's Government having acknowledged the Southern Confederates as belligerents was also unreasonable, as, looking at the char-edged the Southern Confederates as belligerents was also unreasonable, as, looking at the character of the conflict, and the principles of international law itself, England could not avoid that asknowledgement."

that acknowledgment."

In conclusion Earl Russell stated: I cannot avoid saying, that, when I see a desire to put on end to involuntary servitude in the Constituion of the United States, I do rejoice, because great blot is about to be removed from the character of civilized nations, and because the orrible and abominable crime of slavery is to

The French-Confederate Rams.—The Confederate plot to procure iron-clad vessels in France for an attack on New York and a descent on the Northern coast has received new developments, which excite general attention. The following are the latest details: are the latest details:

"The Phare de la Loire says that the suscicions of the French Government have been excited as to the real character of the steam am Olinde, which recently arrived at the Isle of Houal, under the Danish flag, and left again

FRENCH DESIGNS IN MEXICO. The reported cession of Sonora and Lower California to France attracts considerable disly denounced by the papers. The Paris jour-nals, however, deny the statement. The Moni-teur states that all reports which have been cirlated in reference to a cession made to France Mexico of Sonora and other provinces ar

The English papers attach but little value to his semi-official denial, and intimate that it is mere evasion. The London Times states edi nia to France is not considered to have been settled even by the unqualified assertion tele-graphed from Paris that the news on the sub-ject is wholly unfounded. Trouble with France.—Le Nord, a usually well informed journal, has the following important statement in reference to the disturbed relations between France and the United States:

"There was a meeting of the Privy Council on the 4th, in Paris, and we are informed that the affairs of America and the connection they may have with the Mexican Empire formed the ire, when the conclusion of the war has placed the disposal of the republic a large and tried time, with numerous and skilled officers, and a four and a half years' struggle has changed a e of the pacific and conciliatory assurance

The last action has added a new experience to the history of war. In the attack on Fort Fisher, turret-ships were for the first time brought into action in bombarding a fort under nich conditions of weather, number, and effi-iency as to make the narrative of their use corthy of the most careful study. The special eport on these vessels, which Admiral Porter as addressed to the Secretary of the Navv, must eceive the necessary attention from all inter-sted in the practice of naval attack and defence. "The most important fact brought out by the st American experience is, without doubt, the ssibility of making turret ships which sha e sea-going. The Monadnock has proved this, well-built iron-clad ought to be able to beat a pret-ship in sailing, whatever may be her deficiencies in other respects. But if a turret-ship be proved to be sea going, she must, under or-dinary circumstances, and, setting speed aside, be superior to a mere iron-clad. THE AMBITION OF PRUSSIA .- The conduct of Prussia is now attracting considerable attention in Europe. We take the following article in relation to her difficulty with Denmark from the New York Journal of Commerce:

outset to be to secure for herself a strip of sea-coast and a good port, that she might acquire rank among the naval powers of Europe. This view appears to be confirmed by subsequent events. No sooner were the two duchies Schleswig and Holstein, occupied by Germa troops and hostilities suspended than the original and questions in dispute passed from view. Th Danish succession is now a matter of the least concern. The Duke of Augustenburg is a dis-carded pet. It was of far greater moment a few weeks ago to eject from the duchies the troops be longing to Hanover and other petty States of Germany, which were so silly as to think they night occupy the newly acquired territory in common with Prussia, by virtue of the bloo-hed and money spent by them respectively in the late war. They had no choice but to leave the late war. They had no choice but to leave. Having thus removed all encumbrances, King William, in his speech just delivered before Parliament, announces the purpose of introducing measures for augmenting the Prussian navy; also the fact that preliminary surveys have been made for a ship canal to connect the North Sea with the Baltic. A work of this character, cut through the duchies and companded by a great payal station at Kind consended. character, cut through the duchies and commanded by a great naval station at Kiel, one of the proposed termini, would be a magnificent affair in every aspect. Commercially it would be a work in the interest of every maritime nation, and politically it would give that pre-eminence to which Prussia so anxiously aspires. It is not so certain, however, that it is practicable to build this canal; not so much on account of the morrows cost. ot so much on account of the enormous cos not so find the account of the enormous cost involved as the great physical impediments to be prercome in the structure of the coast. Before those, every project discussed within the last three hundred years has successively yielded. Not only are the approaches to the proposed anal extremely perilous by reason of intricate channels and mud-flats extending many miles, out there is a great and constantly varying dif-erence of level between the two seas. The ides in the German Ocean often attain an exraordinary height, while the Baltic is a mo-ionless inland sea. Powerful currents would et in either direction, imposing the necessity of double locks, and making it difficult to preserve a uniform depth of water. Two route are proposed, the first of which is between He server are the west coast of Schleswig and Est surforde on the Baltic side, and the second fron a spot somewhat near Brunsbuttel, a port of dolstein, on the Elbe, near the embouchure hat river, to Kiel, on the Baltic. The form loes not exceed in length thirty English mile nt on the west side navigation would be ser usly embarrassed by an intricate chanu-brough the submerged Friesland Islands, on tell cultivated, from which a numerous popula well cultivated, from which a numerous population was driven by the encroachments of the sea. By the other route the canal would be something more than fifty miles in length and the cost exceed twenty million dollars but the noble barbor of Kiel offers advantages superior to all other considerations. The time saved by the canal, compared with going through the Cattegat and Danish Sound, is calculated at two or three days for steamers and sweek for sailing vessels. Now that the Sound. week for sailing vessels. Now that the Sound dues are abolished, it remains to be seen wheth-er the Prussian Government, or private capital-ists, encouraged by subsidies, will undertake the execution of the work. Twenty thousand vessels is the estimate of the annual trade. It is questionable whether a canal between the Baltic ports and the North Sea would not conduct as much to the aggrandizement of an ambitious monarch, as to the interests of maritime and commercial nations. But whatever the object

Fossil Remains.—In a paper addressed to the academy of Sciences, M. Van Beneden gives an account of certain human remains discovered by him in a grotto situated in the valley of the Lesse. These remains, consisting of nearly complete keletons, he considers as having been varied there by the waters during some great. ried there by the waters during some great ataclysm. The grotto is situated at forty netres above the level of Lesse. All the bones re dispersed in the mass of earth, the long ones always in a horizontal position. A skull in perfect preservation was found under a stone imbedded in stalagmites. This skull was half illed with stones not much smaller than the occipital foramen, through which they had penrated. In front of the cranium there was an moplate, clavicles, ribs. long bones, vertebrase of children and adults. Bones were found firmy wedged between stones, so as to leave no in-ermediate space. Such effects, the author hinks, could only have been produced by water. In the midst of a solid bed of stones here was another cranium, the parietal bone f which was fractured. The bones situated where water could penetrate during the winter, were either reduced to atoms or would fall to dust on being touched; the others were in a neerfect state of preservation. These human nones were found together with those of bears but not of the Ureus Spekeus, being rather hearer to the present species), of oxen, horses, nearer to the present species, or ozen, norses, reindeer, beavers, several beasts of prev, birds, fish (trout and pike), helices, and the Unio Batava, which still lives, together with helices, in the immediate vicinity. Mixed up with these bones there were flints of the most primitive bones there were things of the most primitive form, bits of coal, calcined bones looking as if they had just come out of the fire, and fragments of very old pottery. There were also some of the antlers of the reindeer, with marks upon them evidently made by human hands, but not forming any particular design. The ground were these remains were found meaning the particular design.

TITY ASSOCIATION FOR IMPROVING THE CON-DITION OF THE POOR-AN APPEAL.

The aim of this Association, as many of our tizens are aware, is to diminish beggary and uperism in our midst by such a wise and one mical distribution of charity to the needy, e sick, and unfortunate as shall enable them recover their position as useful, self-sustain g members of society. It is now an incor orated institution with a working organiza-on, consisting of an Executive Board of twen-two members, in which each ward of the city represented by two members. Under this ard, collectors have been appointed in every ard to solicit donations. Visitors are also apward to solicit donations. Visitors are also ap-pointed for their several districts in every ward unds of the Association are not wasted. Under this management during the previous ear, ending in 1864, we distributed in provisons, fuel, and clothing nearly $10,000, giving d to 2,464 families, embracing in all about 300 persons. Thus far during the present ar nearly an equal sum has been raised, and least an equal number of the indigent and k have come under our care. prices as compared with former years, our enditures have been in like proportion. At le to attend to their work, to appoint other some wards this labor has been faithfull erformed. In others we regret to say that thus it has been neglected. The consequence is that while in some wards of the city the gener-ous and benevolent of our citizens have re-sponded nobly to our appeals, in other wards of like wealth and liberality not even a dollar has yet been raised. Therefore we are brought to a stand in this labor of self-denial and charity so urgently needed, while the poor, the sick, and the dying are still on our hands, for whose relief we feel ourselves pledged.

In this trying embarrassment, our first appeal is to those members of our Executive Board and to those of our collectors who have failed to obtain the ready contributions of our benevo-ent citizens. Next, we appeal to all whose hearts are touched in behalf of the suffering and the needy, whose almoners we are, to come forward, without personal solicitation, to our immediate assistance. As our means are increasward, without personal solicitation, to our immediate assistance. As our means are increased, so shall we be enabled to prosecute our work more efficiently. Our aim is to make this Association one that shall do credit to our city, to plant industry and prosperity where now poverty and misery most abound.

Mr. Charles Tilden, Treasurer of the Association, at the Bank of Louisville, will receipt for donations. We trust our citizens will not wait a call from our tardy collectors.

By order of the Executive Board in session.

THE FIRE ON MORDAY-LOSS OF LIFE.-We How Changed!-At the beginning of this war . and after Fort Sumter was surrendered to the rebels, the Governor of South Carolina was serenaded and made a speech of which the following are extracts: I hope on to-morrow, Sabbath though it be, I hope on to morrow. Sabbath though it be, that, under the protection of Providence, and under the orders of General Beauregard, commander of our forces from the Confederate States, you shall have the proud gratification of seeing the Palmetto flag raised upon that fortress, and the Confederate flag of these free and independent States side by side with it; and there they shall float forever, in defiance of any ower that man can bring against them. | Ap-

We have humbled the flag of the United States, and as long as I have the honor to pre-side as your Chief Magistrate, so help me God, there is no power on this earth shall lower from that fortress those flags, unless they be lowered that fortress those flags, unless they be lowered and trailed in a sea of blood. [Vociferous appearse.] I can here say to you it is the first time in the history of this country that the stars and stripes have been humbled. It has triumphed for seventy years, but to-day, on the 18th of April, it has been humbled, and humbled before the glorious little State of South Carolina. [Applause.] * * * *

And I pronounce here before the civilized world, your independence is baptized in blood, your independence is woundon a glorious battle-field, and you are free now and forever in defiance of a world in arms.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1865. THE LAST STRONGHOLD OF THE REBELLION. The gradually advancing columns of General Grant from the North, and the rapid and triumphant campaign of General Sherman from Savannah through the Carolinas, by which the great system of railroads in those States is being utterly destroyed, will compel General Lee either to evacuste Richmond and Petersburg or fight a tremendous battle at no great distance from those places at an early date. The latest telegraphic intelligence from the Potomac army, relative to the movements of General Lee, indicates that the evacuation of Richmond and Petersburg is already in progress, and that bold, combined efforts are being inaugurated to oppose Gen. Sherman in his flank movement upon those places. Gen. Lee is reported as having placed Gen. Joe Johnston in command of the Richmond army, and as having gone with reinforcements to Beauregard, in tending himself to assume command of the combined forces which are to engage Gen. Sherman. There is, therefore, strong probability that a great battle will shortly occur between Lee and Sherman. A stronger probability exists however, that the rebel movements now going on from Richmond and Petersburg contemplate the entire evacuation of Middle and Eastern Virginia even without a battle, for, in a general engagement with the joint forces of Grant and need not be afraid or ashamed to know what Sherman, the chances are fearfully great against a rebel success. A general engagement now on the borders of lower Virginia would but precipitate the inevitable overthrow of the re. her as affluent as she ever dreamed of being. bellion. Gen. Lee will postpone his doom to as late a period as possible. With this view we anticipate the complete evacuation of Richmond and Petersburg, and the concentration of the main rebel armies at a more interior stronghold. What course, then, will General Lee pursue in his escape from Grant and Sherman? It is clear that his army must go from Richmond and Petersburg by some railroad or water course, and a casual glance at the map, keeping in view the present and prospective positions of our own troops under General Sherman, will show that the only route left open to him leads into Southwestern Virginia and Eastern Tennessee. Lynchburg, on the East Tennessee and Virginia railroad, is the key to the last stronghold of the rebellion Upon the evacuation of Richmond and Petersburg, the army of Lee is bound to move westward, as all the lines of communication immediately south and southeast of those points are effectually commanded by Gen. Sherman, We believe, therefore, that Gen. Lee now designs to move his army as speedily as possible by way of the East Tennessee and Virginia railroad into the fertile valley of Southwestern Virginia lying between the Cumberland and Alleghany Mountains. This region is not only most strongly fortified by nature in a military point of view, being a great double caponicre, General Lee may go, he must control this region of which are absolutely essential in the construction and manufacture of war material. solution that the charters of these companies shall not be published among the public laws. We respectfully think that the introduction of such a resolution, though well intended, is a nistake. Its adoption would be unprecedented. It would be wholly without parallel in the leg slation of Kentucky or of any other State. No State of the Union has ever granted a charter to a company of any kind and refused to give it a place among the published laws. And we do not see upon what good or even plausible ground such a refusal could rest.

It is true that the Oil Company charters in Kentucky are numerous. But the Legislature has seen fit to grant them all, and, if they were worth granting, they are worth publishing. We have heard it said that the different companies will of course publish their own charters for distribution. The same might always have been said with equal propriety of all companies. of every kind, that our Legislature or any Legslature has ever incorporated. But, as we have said, no Legislature has ever been influenced by any such consideration. And there can be no ufficient reason why ours should act upon it now, and act upon it in opposition to an interest that promises to be one of the great leading nterests, if not the greatest of all the leading

We are told that the publication of the Oil Charters would make the volume of public laws large and unwieldy. Then let there be two volumes. The thought of an unwieldy volume may be a valid reason for not enacting oo many laws but not for omitting to publish such as are enacted. The people have a right, a recognized and established right, to find among what purports to be the public laws all the public laws. Economy is mentioned as a reason for not publishing the Oil Charters. We hink that it would be the poorest economy, so alled, ever practised by any legislative body. t would be not economy but sacrifice.

From a thousand unmistakable indications in arious parts of the State, it is evident that Kentucky is as rich in oil as Pennsylvania, if not richer. And she is vastly rich in various minerals. The many oil companies, in boring for oil. will develope other substances of incalculable value. A most brilliant prospect is opened to Kentueky. We hear from some counties that almost the entire population wish to participate in the great oil enterpaise. But they want to see the charters under which they are to take stock, and to see them in an official form, They are not willing to take stock without see ing them. Let the charters be published offiially, and every citizen can read them at his ounty seat. Otherwise he will not be able to ee them without making a journey to Frankfort, or sending and getting them officially opied at very considerable expense. This ficulty, if it exists, will no doubt prevent the aking of oil stock by thousands who would be glad to take it. It will do much to weaken if ot to strike down the great oil enterprise. We are told that the most exaggerated noons, as to what the cost of printing the body have been heard to say that the expense would be ten thousand dollars. This is a very great and strange mistake. The acts of 1863-4 made a volume of 596 pages, and the cost of printing, exclusive of paper, was mine hundred and skxty odd dollars. The chairman of the same at this office.

p esent Committee on Printing has satisfied himself by careful estimate that all the oil charters will make just about three hundred and fifty pages, and, as an additional compensation of thirty-three and a third per cent has been voted, the cost of printing will be about eight hundred and fixty dollars, and the paper will cost about six hundred, making the en expense of publishing the charters, if published in the same volume as the other public laws, only $1,450. Surely it cannot be worth the egislature's while, for the sake of this pitiful sum, to violate all precedent and put in jeopardy as noble a prospect as our State ever had before her.

The Legislature has already been very hard pon the oil companies that it has chartered. In the first place it imposes a tax of a hundred dollars upon each company before even a search for oil can be commenced. This tax is not upon success, but upon the bare attempt to succeed. Such a tax is unknown elsewhere. In the second place, the Legislature reserves the injurious power, reserved in no other State, of altering or abolishing the charters at will. And now if, in addition to these things, the Legislature, while the State is to receive say forty or fifty thousand dollars from the companies before they can begin work, refuses even to publish their charters at an expense of $1,450, the climax of oppression appears to us to be reached. In that case it will almost seem that our State, as represented by her Legislature, is as anxious to keep her resources, her national riches, her subterranean wealth undeveloped as other States are to develop theirs. But Kentucky lies beneath her surface. She has an opulence there, which, if she will be just to herself and to her energetic and enterprising people, will make

If anybody expects to clear Kentucky of guerillas without making "arbitrary arrests" of other persons than merely those who are caught in hostile array with arms in their hands, the mistake will appear on making the experiment. Rebels, rebel sympathizers, copperheads (strong), copperheads (mild), copperstreaked Unionists, and all timid people safely located; these several grades and kinds of persons are indulging in vigorous self and mu-ual congratulation over the prospect of seeing Kentucky exempt from any more "arbitrary Most of the talk that is not sinister and malignant on this subject is puerile.

We speak with entire confidence in regard to This food has been most vigilantly husbanded this matter. NEW YORK DETECTIVE:

PRIVATE RECORD OF J. B. EDITED BY J. B. WILLIAMS, M. D.

LARGE OCTAVO. - - PRICE 75 CENTS.

This is a collection of very startling stories, showing how a shrewd New York Detective outwitted a lot of inning rogues. The adventures of the officer are very extraordinary. The disguises and stratagems he adopted to entrap the scamps he had to arrest, and the hair breadth escapes he made from perilous situations, to gether with his ultimate success furnish material for twenty-nine very dramatic tales. However startling the incidents may be, there is no improbability about hem; indeed the book bears internal evidence of being a transcript of personal experience, or based up m it, and many of the cases will be recognized by readers light.

To all who know of such indications upon land—not already leased or bought—inducements are offered, which may be learned on application to 18 dislm&w4

NOTICES OF THE DAY.

THOMAS WEATHERSPOON .- Anyone who can give information concerning this gentleman is ragraph:
"An individual named Ado i hus Myers was referred to the advertisement, under the head "An individual named Ado i hus Myers was found guilty of the crime of horse-stealing in the city court yesterday morning. A commission from General Lindsey to raise a company of State Guards was found in his possession. His last thefts were committed in Hardin county."

This paragraph is calculated to work injustice to General Lindsey, as from it the inference might naturally be drawn that the General, at least, does not inquire sufficiently into the character of gentlemen to whom he issues commissions, which we know is not the case. We can bear testimony that no man can procure authority to recruit from that office, who is not personally known, unless he be indorsed and Wanted, of Robert Scott.

The Nashville Frees of yes-On Saturday night it rose four and a half feet pl On Saturday night it rose four and a half feet plumb water, and yesterday up to noon was rising at the rate of three or four inches an hour. In some places, the river is out of its banks, and the backwater has ofvered the low grounds, in Nashville and Edgefield, the water spreading yesterday at a fearful rapidity.

The Government ship-yard on the Edgefield hank of the river threatened to be submerged. The water has already entered one portion of the lot, and stopped the work on some new boats, nearly ready for launching. The only hope now is in fair weether, but with more rain, we may expect a freshet nearly equal to that of former years.

All freights have been removed from the lower level of fear of the water. At the present time of writing there is not much of the upper wharf out of water.

The Mississippi at St. Louis is steadily rising. The Missouri Democrat of Saturday says:
